“ It was Cass who taught me to teach shop. He gave me a lifelong love of woodworking. I had never been in a shop before he and Mark Veltman welcomed me into it. We used to get together at my house with Florian and John Harrower to play bridge. As my shop grew at home we produced some great things together. I had lunch with Cass several times this year and he never ever complained. It seems that whenever I went to the range to shoot Cass was there working on some project. I loved the giy!

“ Boy, oh boy Dad, am I gonna miss you. I so enjoyed talking to you on my way to work. I can still hear your voice... "Good Morning, Mary". Thank you for all of the life lessons you have taught me, even when I was reluctant to learn. May you rest in peace.
