“ Jim lived on the same road as many of my family, including Uncle Wilbur Bigelow. One summer I rode my horse over to the Bigelow farm and left her there for a couple weeks when my folks took us to Colorado. I'd told Uncle Wilbur anyone was welcome to ride her if they wanted and Jim took her for a 'spin' but, as I was later heard the story, he was a little too 'cowboy' with her. Lady loved to run, so she did when he kicked her too hard and she raced under a pine tree and rubbed him off! Yup, being kids was a lot of fun back then and that little incident made me chuckle up my sleeve. Lots of good memories of the Stacks, Bigelows, Gibsons, and McKays who lived on the same road. To remaining family and friends of Jim, most sincere condolences.
