“ The aroma of Shalimar. The trill of heart-felt laughter. The kindest gaze and warming smile. Bouncing on mom's knee in the waves as we learned to swim. Her always gentle teaching ways. These are glimpses of my mom, Kathleen.

Share memories, but how does one share the fibers of yourself, for she is in the minds, hearts, loves, and beings of each of her children. Her quiet ways formed our spirits. Her habits, are our habits. Her indomitable spirit, is our legacy. Most of all mom's ability to love completely and selflessly remains. Mom's love was always steadfast, pure, strong, loyal, unbreakable. By example she taught how to love. She taught us God's love. She taught us to love the sick, the stranger, the cast-off, the other, because in all there is God. Now she is with God and all her beloved family and friends that have gone on ahead.

To you sweetest mother, I say as you wrote in your letters, cards and notes to each child and grandchild,

"Love and Prayers".
