“ I met Church in 1987 when he was working for the London Knights. I was working at a radio station and he was my client. We were about the same age. We hit it off pretty well. We used to go for lunch at Ming's Dining Lounge and he loved the place. All you could eat Chinese Food. We also drank a fair amount of beer together. When my first child Ryan came along in 1993, Church told me Ryan was the first baby he ever held. I always remembered that as a special moment. Even though he moved to many different cities, we stayed in touch and would speak at least once a year. Years later in 2011, my second son Tyson was celebrating his 16th birthday. We planned a trip to NYC. Church hooked us up with seats in a private box at a Mets game. Another forever memory for me and my son. That was the last time I saw Mike in person. We continued to speak annually (if not more) and before the pandemic we were talking about seeing each other in Detroit for a Red Wing game. My heart goes out to the family and I would like to offer sincere condolences. Gone way too soon. RIP Church!
