“ There were a lot of good memories of working with Susie at Holly Police Department. Please allow me to share just two or many of them.

One day, she received a 911 call regarding a mother going into labor. The baby was not about to wait for the arrival of EMS. Susie in a very calm, soothing voice coached the friend or relative with her in assisting in the delivery. The gratifying moment came when the sound of the baby crying could be heard. A couple of weeks or so later, mom brought in baby to meet Susie and thank her.

A somewhat regular event were the times that very young children would call 911 to try it out. I could tell that it was a youngster because Susie would talk to them in a (once again) calm, gentle voice asking where their mommy or daddy were and if she could talk to them.

In that job, there were plenty of challenging times -- but some very good times to go along with those.
